WALK-OVER

DO YOU wear the "Restee" Walk-Over Boot? It's very popular with McGill men because of its good looks—sturdy wear—and solid comfort. It comes in black or tan, and prices commence at $5.00.

Napoleon Bonaparte claimed that comfortable boots were vital to an Army's efficiency—and statistics show that poor foot-wear robs one of 20% efficiency. Ever think of it? Be that?

ANNUAL BOARD PROMISES MANY INNOVATIONS

Progress in the Work Outlined so Far is Satisfactory

ARTS EDITOR NEEDS SKETCHES

Original Drawings, or Snap-shots Are Wanted

The third meeting of the '16 annual Editorial Board was held on Tuesday night last. The progress in the work outlined at the previous meeting was satisfactory, but it was evident that a great deal yet remains to be done before all the necessary copy is furnished and revised for printing.

Several innovations were introduced which are designed to meet with general approval from the whole year.

Judging by the number of drawings and sketches already given in, this university is pitifully lacking in art. As such is not the case, students are asked to try and meet the needs of the Art Editor, Mr. Booth, of Architecture. Those who have any original sketches or snapshots whatever, which have a bearing upon the different student activities or studies themselves, will be eagerly welcomed by the board.

This year, of all years, should furnish very respectable material, both for artists and for wits of every kind. Every member of year '16 should be responsible for some contribution of an interesting nature to his "Annual," and not leave the whole burden of the work to fall on the board alone.

All clubs and societies which are usually represented, should get their group pictures taken immediately to ensure insertion; and every undergraduate of each faculty should make his appointment with Rice at once, if he has not already done so, or run the risk of having his picture omitted altogether.

If you have it in mind to help, ask your representative what he requires, and then make your good intention manifest.

FRESHMEN IN LAW MET REGARDING CHRISTMAS EXAMS.

Dates Suitable to the Class Have Been Recommended

A meeting of Law '17 was held last Monday night at the request of certain of the professors to decide upon what dates would be most suitable to the class for holding the Christmas examinations. It was decided to recommend that the examinations in "Legal History" be held on December 14, and the examination in "Real Rights" on December 18. Before this decision was reached there was a considerable amount of argument indulged in, but when the vote was taken it was found that the above dates were the most popular. In the absence of President Hackett, the vice-president, L. Fontaine was in the chair.

RHODES TRUSTEE AWAITS RETURN OF GERMAN STUDENTS

German Scholars Will Still Be Allowed Privilege of Rhodes Scholarships

Dr. Parkin, organizing representative of the Rhodes trust, has intimated through the Times that there is no truth in the report that the trustees propose to take legal steps to annul the codicil to the will of Cecil Rhodes, by which he made provision for scholarships for German students.

"We have found these scholars," Dr. Parkin says, "as interesting men as any we have had, and they have always expressed great satisfaction with their life at the university and strong affection for Oxford."

"We are sorry," he adds, "to lose them, and a trustee, in writing to me lately, expressed the hope that in the future we should see a new Germany arise which would send its men again to us, and so justify the hope that Rhodes entertained about the influence of his scholarships."—Monitor.

FRENCH COLLEGE OF JURISPRUDENCE OPENED FOR TERM

Opening Lecture Delivered to a Silent Body of Students

The college of jurisprudence has opened the autumn term. The usual bustle and animation of a first day were entirely lacking and the first of a course of lectures was listened to in silence, except for the cheers which greeted any patriotic reference. The professor, Joseph Barthelmy, impressed upon his class the necessity at this juncture for every one to be doing his duty in his own sphere. Political liberties were not the arbitrary and artificial creation of legislators. They proceeded, said the professor, from the particular genius of a nation.

It was to maintain for France the right of living under her own constitution that war was being waged, and that was natural that Great Britain,

Annual Reading Contest Held at the R.V.C. Yesterday

The regular meeting of the French Society was held in the R. V. C. Common Room at five o'clock on Wednesday. The programme of the day proved popular, as it was the annual reading contest. Ten competitors took part and their selections showed great variety in choice of subject and in manner of delivery. Among the authors chosen were Ronsard, Diderot, Daudet, Chamfort, Antole France, Lafontaine, Corneille.

The judges, Madame Montpetit and Madame Roi, awarded the prize, "La Petite Fadette," by George Sand, to Margaret Gibb, who delivered a well-chosen selection with great expression and a good accent. Honorable mention was awarded to Jessie Thomson for an expressive reading from Anatole France's "Livre de Mon Ami," and to Antonia Seiden, who recalled to life our old friend "Tartarin," in a charming manner.

CAMBRIDGE GETS A REPLY FROM LOUVAIN RECTOR

Belgian Educator Expresses Regret at Inability to Transfer University to England

The reply of the rector of Louvain University to Cambridge's offer of hospitality has been received after some delay, due to difficulties of communication. The full text of the letter has appeared in the Cambridge University Reporter. It is as follows: "The Rector of the University of Louvain, deeply touched by the generous invitation addressed to the Alma Mater by the ancient and renowned University of Cambridge, has difficulty in retaining from replying to this invitation in the words of the Apocalypse: 'Ecce venio cito.'"

"To his deep regret, present circumstances, circumstances which can only be appreciated at close quarters, render it materially and morally impossible for the University of Louvain itself to be transferred into English territory, or for the university to send a delegation from its staff of professors."

"These circumstances are such that it is not even permissible for the rector to cause, or to invite, his undergraduates to leave Belgium. As soon as it is possible for him to do so the Rector will himself proceed to England, or send a delegate, to explain to the Cambridge Academic Senate the sad necessity which prevents him from proving his gratitude by enthusiastically accepting the proffered benefit. Though Louvain University has suffered considerably, she will certainly recover, and if she is spared further trials she will be able to reopen as soon as the present state of affairs is at an end. She will then lose no time in repairing her ruins, strong in the support which the noble University of Cambridge has afforded her in this time of trial."—Monitor.

R.V.C. FRESHETTES HELD SUCCESSFUL CLASS MEETING

Hockey Representatives Were Chosen to Represent the Class

A very well attended meeting of R. V. C. '18 was held at one o'clock on Wednesday. The president, Miss B. Boyd, was successful in calling the meeting to order. The business before the meeting was the election of a captain for the hockey team and a representative for fancy skating. Since most of the girls were very modest in accepting their nominations, there was much discussion and persuasion. Finally Miss Grace Frowse was elected as captain of the hockey team, and Miss Rita Potter as representative for fancy skating.

The president reminded the girls to pay their subscriptions for the Y.W.C.A. to Miss Grace Garlaier. The meeting ended after a roving practice, held under the direction of Miss Ivadell Hurd.

WESTERN CLUB TO HOLD SMOKER THIS EVENING

Second Meeting of the Club Promises to be a Big Success

DR. BARNES WILL SPEAK

A Good Programme of Music and Monologues Has Been Arranged

The Western Club of McGill will hold its second meeting of the year in the Union to-night. The main event on the programme will be a talk on icebergs by Dr. Barnes. It is rather fitting that the Western Club should have the privilege of hearing Dr. Barnes to-night as it will probably be the last time that he will address any of the McGill clubs. Dr. Barnes is leaving McGill next year to take up his new position as head of the physics department of the University of B.C.

Dr. Barnes has gained a world-wide reputation owing to his work among the icebergs of the St. Lawrence and the Straits of Belle Isle. A large turnout of members is expected if for no other purpose than to meet the doctor and hear him tell of his now famous work.

Another attractive number has been arranged for by the executive in the form of a monologue. The committee are quite jubilant over this scoop and can promise all those who attend a good few minutes of laughter. A good musical programme has also been arranged, including talent from the club members.

Refreshments will be served and as usual free tobacco and cigarettes will be passed around.

A very interesting programme has gone to no end of trouble to make this meeting a success, and hope to see a large attendance of Western men, and a characteristic Western spirit at this smoker to-night.

HISTORICAL CLUB TO HOLD MEETING THIS EVENING

A Varied and Interesting Programme Has Been Arranged

The Historical Club will hold its regular meeting to-night at the residence of Dr. Colby, 581 Pine Avenue. A very interesting programme has been arranged. Dr. Colby will read a paper on "Frederick the Great." This should prove a most instructive lecture, one which will throw light on the present military system existing in Germany. Mr. W. C. Rose will read a paper on "Silesia." Mr. W. H. Bigger will read one on "The Seven Years' War," and Mr. R. De W. Scott one on "Domestic Administration."

At the first of the year Dr. Colby kindly placed his home at the disposal of the club for their meetings. The committee are very grateful for this offer, and have been only too glad to accept. This should prove a material benefit to the club, and add greatly to the pleasure of the meetings.

QUEENS PROPOSE FORMING AN ARMY MEDICAL CORPS

A Stationary Hospital With Accommodation for Two Hundred Patients Is Planned

It is expected that instruction will soon begin in the work of the Army Medical Corps. Dr. Etherington has offered his services to the Government in recruiting a stationary hospital, with accommodation for two hundred patients, the personnel to consist of eight officers who shall be experienced medical doctors and six or three rank and file, and seventeen nurses. The rank and file will be in effect men attendants, whose duties will vary in accordance with adaptability and experience. Men of all faculties may join if they wish, the only restriction made is in confining the corps to Queen's men, the idea is to make it entirely a Queen's unit.

The department in replying to Dr. Etherington's offer stated that up to the present neither a stationary or a general hospital had been asked for by the imperial authorities, but they would notify him immediately should such a contingency arise. From present indications it is nearly certain that there will be a demand for aid of this nature, so Dr. Etherington intends, with the co-operation of the students, to proceed with preparations and the training.

The defeats of Vanderbilt by Auburn and the defeat of Sewanee by Tennessee leaves the two undefeated teams the lone contenders for the Southern championship. While Auburn has not yet been scored on, this has no effect on the standing and a post-season game will be necessary to decide the winner.

The Song Book

The present McGill Song Book has been obsolete for over a decade; whoever happens to find one anywhere will realize this after a glance at the table of contents. About five years ago it was rumoured that the Executive of the Glee Club, at that time alive, was co-operating with a Committee of Professors and Graduates to produce a new edition of the Song Book, and last year it was supposed to be almost ready, but whether the war has turned our thought in other directions, or whether these rumours were without foundation, this long-expected magnum opus has not appeared, nor are there any prospects of its doing so.

McGill is said by knackers and others to lack "college life," (mark you, not college spirit); men don't get together to talk and sing as they do in other colleges, if it were not for the evidence of the hand-books so closely scanned at Rooters' Club practices, no one would know we had any college songs at all. "Brethren, these things ought not to be," and an up-to-date McGill Song-Book would be the most effective means of bringing about the needed change. It should include the selection at present in The Handbook; some Canadian, British and other national airs, several of the best-known French-Canadian songs, which form a type of music all their own, and the favorite "College Songs," ably arranged for male quartettes—The Bulldog, The Mermaid, Solomon Levi, and so on. Such a compilation would fill a great and apparent want in the life of Old McGill at the present moment. A college without a song-book is as incomplete all the time as one without a regiment could be in the present crisis.

Cramming

The tendency always is for students to let their work slide till the month or even the fortnight immediately preceding the examinations. Against this tendency it is, of course, now too late to give a warning, but regarding remedies often adopted by Freshmen of all years, a word of advice may be appropriate. By all means avoid the use of any drugs as stimulants to carry the weary one through an all-night session. Every year some student, more zealous than discreet, takes an overdose and causes a sensation in the house where he happens to be, lucky for him if some senior Med. is ready to hand. Practically all mental breakdowns attributed to over-study are, one is told, due to the after-effects of stimulants. When a man's own will power fails to keep him going, it is most emphatically time to stop, artificial aids are apt to have worse effects than the failure to pass which one seeks to avoid.

McGill Twenty-Four Months Ago

From The McGill Daily of December 3, 1912

A hitch in the arrangements for the big dinner on Saturday night in honor of the champion McGill team has been caused by the refusal of the Toronto University football authorities to send the Intercollegiate cup, emblematic of the college football championship, to the present holders. They claim that, having won it four times, they are entitled to keep it, stating that there is a clause in the rules providing that in the event of a team winning the championship for three successive years, the cup becomes the property of their club. The first intimation that any idea of the sort had been conceived by the Varsity people was given when the McGill Executive telegraphed to Toronto that they send the cup as soon as possible in order that miniature might be made for presentation to the McGill team. The donor of the cup, Dr. Yates, says Toronto's claims are not founded on fact.

One of the most interesting prospects before the undergraduate body this year is the establishment of a summer camp. As yet the undergraduates have done very little in aid of the McGill University Settlement, but it is now proposed that a camp be established for one month for girls who are now being helped by the Settlement. The camp would be solely for the purpose of giving these children an experience of camp life.

Is it desirable that there should be an Arts' dinner this year? If the Arts' dinner is dry (or wet), will it prove successful and thoroughly representative of the whole faculty? What can the students of arts do to make their dinner a success?

The tablet is a memorial to H. L. Borden, B.A., and E. P. O'Reilly, B.A., who were slain in the Empire's last struggle—the Boer war.

STUDENT AFFAIRS

Matters Pertaining to the Students' World

"What is the German university tendency?" the writer asked of many educators in the German Empire shortly before the war. One teacher replied, and his answer was in unison with the replies of many educators. "Preparation to serve the state." Another university professor of eminence said, "The nation that possesses the best scholars must take the lead, if not to-day, then to-morrow."

The American is at once struck with the fact of seriousness among German undergraduates. The requirements of research and methodical precision in their studies hold the attention of the 3,700 students of the 21 large German universities, and preclude to a large extent the American college tendency toward athletics and social diversions. The "corporation" and "dueling cafes" are places for exclusion rather than comprehension of student life, while political societies are barred.

Professors in the German universities are state officials, and their professional officialdom is an added barrier to the familiar association of student and professor, as it is seen in the intimate relationship of dons and undergraduates at the colleges of Oxford and Cambridge.

Student self-government is growing by leaps and bounds in the colleges of the United States. Institutions where such government by the students is taking on now and advanced forms the present season include Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill.; Williams College, Rutland, Western Reserve, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, where a general meeting of the whole student body is held once a month to study and discuss matters of interest to students of the institution, Swarthmore, Allegheny College, the University of Washington at Seattle, Leland Stanford, Jr., Pennsylvania State College, and at least a score of other institutions, representing virtually every state in the Union.

Among the universities who have pioneered this system of college honor, Princeton and the University of Virginia are notable. The writer was impressed with the seriousness of this disciplinary department of American collegiate life while visiting some time ago the University of Virginia, at a time when the undergraduate body was deeply stirred over a matter that involved college honor.

A senior of high standing socially and also intellectually, the son of a prominent Richmond family, had been overheard to use disrespectful language to his landlady. The senior was summoned before the student committee, which had charge of undergraduate affairs, confronted with the charges, allowed to make answer, and being found guilty, was asked to leave the institution. His family and friends, being incensed by this demand, which seemed to them both harsh and unjust, appealed to the faculty for redress. The chairman of the faculty replied that the matter was entirely in the hands of the students, and the appeal would have to be made to the student body.

The student council, upon being approached, readily acceded to the request of hearing again the young man's side of the question, the only point being to learn whether or not the young man was guilty. At the trial before the undergraduates, both the student body and the young man's friends entered court. The trial was held in one of the largest halls of Charlottesville, and almost the entire undergraduate body sat through the evening and far into the morning listening with judicial calm to both sides of the case.

One of the judges who informed the writer of the incident said that during these hours, as he looked into the student faces, he did not recall that any youth changed his expression, but that every one sat in the impartial attitude of seeking the exact truth. The jury, chosen from the faculty and men of the town, found that the young man had actually used the words attributed to him, and therefore pronounced him guilty of the charge. The case was then closed and the young man, despite his influential friends and high social standing, was obliged to pack his trunk and return home. The spirit of college honor had spoken, and the penalty was enforced more vigorously than perhaps it might have been had the matter been in the hands of the faculty.

The searching question addressed at one time to the beautiful houses of Fifth Avenue by Henry James may be taken to heart by those who are responsible for the policies of our institutions of higher learning. "What are you going to make your future of, for all your airs, we want to know? What elements of the future, as futures have gone in the great world, are at all assured to you?"

A senior at one of the universities of Europe and of Asia, rightly demand a practical resultant from the millions of money, for the sacrifice, and for the habit extended in making possible the institutions of higher learning.

Not long ago at a New England commencement, a father and mother sent a thrill through the audience as they rose in their seats to watch their son entering the commencement hall as a graduating senior. The large church where the exercises were held was filled with friends of the graduating class, when attention was called to the man, whose clothes were homespun and of country cut. His face was deeply lined and wore the tan of many summers. The woman by his side was a quiet and sympathetic person and Barrie might have said, "She had a mother's face."

As the eyes of many in the hall were turned towards this couple the commencement procession entered the church. First there came the dignitaries, the academic faculty and members of the corporation. The father and mother paid little attention to these. Now the seniors began to enter, and the lady suddenly rose, placing both hands upon the man's arm. Her face was radiant, and those who were interested looked down the line of students to discover an answering light reflected from the face of a strong youth near the head of the seniors. It was easy to picture the meaning of that scene, the couple back on an upland farm in New England, dedicating themselves to the task of giving their boy the advantage that they themselves never had received, and which they knew would separate him from their humble life and surroundings.

It had been no easy path up which this pair had struggled to the attainment of the joy of this ambitious moment. This was the day of their reward, and it was enough. All the gray, hard days behind were lost in the inspiring brilliancy of this achievement. The father was full of joy because through "summer's heat and winter's cold" he had worked for that boy to make his graduation possible, while to the mother was it not enough that he was her son?

Such sacrifice increases the responsibility of educational study and improvement, until there shall be no doubt about the fact in the thought of any one that it really pays in the deepest and in the highest sense to send American boys to college—Christian Science Monitor.

RECRUITING SHOWS NUMBER EACH DAY HAS NOT INCREASED

After Saturday, Dec. 5th, There Will Be No Chance of Joining the Corps

In spite of the approaching termination of recruiting, in the McGill C. O. T. C., the number of recruits each day has not increased, only three men joining yesterday. The indifference on the part of the students is that they do not realize that after Saturday, December 5, there will be no chance of joining the corps.

The strength of the battalion is now in the vicinity of twelve hundred, so the commanders have a substantial body on which to work. If recruiting were to continue throughout the winter, there would be some few men in the ranks who were not conversant with their drill; in this way the more advanced men would be retarded in their work, while the new men were catching up with them. The disadvantage of such an arrangement can be easily seen, consequently the idea of the closing of recruiting can be readily understood.

Without doubt there are many men in college who have not yet joined. Unless these men are recruited by Saturday, they will realize late in the year what a mistake they have made. Everyone knows that the McGill regiment will not go to the front as a unit, but this is no reason why men who intend to go to the front at some time should not join. The training received here will pass muster in every militia regiment, so that recruits to the expeditionary forces from McGill will have a much better chance of rapid promotion than the absolutely new recruit.

It is almost certain that by the end of the winter, McGill will possess a regiment of which she can be justly proud. When this happens the only course open to men who wish to fight before it is too late, will be one of vain regrets that they did not listen to the appeals of their friends and sign on for the training course. The friends of these lukewarm gentlemen would only make a flimsy appeal to them, there is little doubt but that the ranks would be appreciably swelled before recruiting finally closes next Saturday.

The recruits yesterday were: Company "C"—Black, H. J. Patterson, N. T.

LIEUT. H. MICOLEAU FRENCH PROFESSOR AT BROWN KILLED

Professor Who Was a French Sub-lieutenant Had Lately Been Promoted

A cablegram received at Brown University on Saturday stated that Professor Henri F. Micolet, of the French Department, had been killed in battle on September 2, while serving his native country as a lieutenant in the Eighty-Third French Infantry. This cablegram was in response to one sent by Prof. Landon at the request of Mrs. Micolet on Friday to the French Minister of War at Bordeaux, asking for the whereabouts of Prof. Micolet.

LATE STRATEGIST OF U. S. NAVY WAS L. L. D. OF MCGILL

Rear-Admiral A. T. Mahan Had Degree of LL.D. Conferred at McGill in 1900

Rear-Admiral Alfred Thayer Mahan, retired, the noted naval expert and writer, died at Washington Dec. 1st.

Rear-Admiral A. T. Mahan was born at West Point, N.Y., on Sept. 27, 1840. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1859, became a midshipman in the same year, a lieutenant in 1861, a lieutenant-commander in 1865, a commander in 1872 and a captain in 1885. He retired at his own request with the rank of captain in 1896, after forty years' service. He was a member of the American Historical Association in 1902-3, and was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. In 1900, he was elected LL.D. of McGill.

SUCCESSFUL NIGHT SCOUTS WORK WELL POSITION STORMED

"A" and "B" Successfully Storm Position Held by "C" and "D"

Last night the McGill C.O.T.C. had a very successful night parade. At 8.15 Companies A and B set out from the High School with band leading, marched along Sherbrooke and up Cote des Neiges, C and D set out previously to take a position on top of the Mountain. A and B advanced up the slope from Shakespeare road and succeeded in capturing several of the enemy's positions. The manoeuvres were very successfully carried out, and good work done by the scouts. Some of the men became lost in the fog and were some time in finding their companies, so that the march home was somewhat delayed. With the aid of the guides, the companies marched home and arrived at the armories shortly after eleven o'clock.

Everyone shared the opinion that a good night's work had been done.

TO CANADA (By Percy Mackaye.)

Men of Canada, Fellow Americans, Proud our hearts beat for you over the border; Proud of the fight you wage, Proud of your valor and your gall, Sailing to battle for freedom and order.

On our own battlefields Many's the bout we had— Yankee, Canadian, redcoat and ranger; But our old brotherhood, Staunch through the centuries, Shouts in our blood now to share in your danger.

Ah, it's a weary thing Waiting and watching here, Numbing ourselves to a frozen neutrality; Yet, in a world at war, 'Tis our ood part to keep Patient to forge the strong peace of finality.

Though, then, our part be Peace, Yet our free fighting souls League with your own 'gainst the world-lust of Vandals; Yea, in the dreadful night, We, with your women, weep And for your shroudless dead burn our shrines candles.

So, by the gunless law Of our sane borderline, By our soul's faith, that no border can sever Freedom—now many you fight, Waging the death of war, Silence the demons of cannon forever!

Kh-folk of Canada, So may your allied arms Smite with his legions the Lord of Disorder! God save our noble cause! God save our gallant sons! Would we might sail with them—over the border!

Ohio—The woman students of Ohio University have issued an ultimatum to the effect that they do not want escorts to the football games. They say that they want the men to be in the rooters' sections, and that they themselves want to be in the girls' sections, where they can have as good a time as they want.

Illinois—University of Illinois Red Heads' Club is now a chapter of the National Red headed men's fraternity, Lambda Tau Rho. Initiation services were held last week. The chapter consists of thirteen men.

California—The co-eds of the University of California eat more than one and a half tons of chocolate creams in a school year, according to figures compiled by the local co-operative store. The average sum expended for the sweet stuff has been computed at $6.24 for each person.

Wisconsin—Intersorority bowling has been inaugurated at the University of Wisconsin. Each sorority bowls two times a week until each sorority has met every other one in the league. The winning team will be given a large trophy cup.

BIG COLLECTION AT CORNELL GAME. The contributions to the University of Cornell Relief Fund, which were gathered at the Pennsylvania-Cornell game by Boy Scouts, aggregated $1,550. Tin dippers were used to hold the collections, which were largely in silver.

Oklahoma—There are 45 per cent. more church members at the University of Oklahoma than there were last year, according to statistics furnished by the Y.M.C.A. secretary. Five hundred and forty-four out of the enrollment of 644 men in the University belong to some church or have some definite church preference. There were 100 expressing no preference in comparison with 87 last year.

The Royal Military College of Canada

THERE are few national institutions of more value and interest to the country than the Royal Military College of Canada. Notwithstanding this, its object and the work it is accomplishing are not sufficiently understood by the general public.

The College is a Government Institution, designed primarily for the purpose of giving instruction in all branches of military science to Cadets and officers of the Canadian Militia. In fact, it corresponds to Woolwich and Sandhurst. The Commandant and military instructors are all officers on the active list of the Imperial army, lent for the purpose, and there is in addition a complete staff of professors for the instruction in subjects essential to a sound, modern education.

Whist the College is organized on a strictly military basis, the cadets receive a practical and scientific training in subjects essential to a sound, modern education. The course includes a thorough grounding in Mathematics, Civil Engineering, Surveying, Physics, Chemistry, French and English Literature.

The strict discipline maintained at the College is one of the most valuable factors in the education of the cadets. The diploma of graduation is considered by the authorities conducting the examination for Dominion Land Surveyor to be equivalent to a university degree, and by the Regulations of the Law Society of Ontario, it obtains the same exemptions as a B.A. degree.

The length of the course is three years, in three terms of 8 months each. The total cost of the course, including board, uniform, instructional material, and all extras, is about $800. The annual competitive examination for admission to the College, takes place in May of each year, at the headquarters of the several military divisional areas and districts. For full particulars regarding this examination and for any other information, application should be made to the secretary of the Militia Council, Ottawa, Ont., or to the Commandant, Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont. R.V.C. SENIORS CHAMPIONS OF YEAR SERIES

Defeated First Year Students in Game which was Fast and Most Exciting

Great interest was shown in the inter-year basketball series at the R.V.C. yesterday, when the Seniors met the Freshies in the match that was to decide the year championship. By playing a fast, consistent game, the Seniors managed to pile up a lead which their opponents were unable to overcome, and at the end of the game found the Seniors champions by the score of 17-10.

The playing was very fast in the first half, and although the Seniors led by 12-1 when half-time was called, the Freshies were by no means weak. The Seniors' guards did particularly good work, stopping some almost sure baskets. The passing of both teams was excellent. The 15 wings did some pre-arranged catching and the forwards consistently. The Seniors' baskets, by dint of good teamwork and dexterity, managed to evade their guards time and again and put in several goals from difficult angles. The Senior centre showed up well, catching and passing with great sureness.

In the second half the Freshies stiffened up wonderfully and the Senior team was put on their mettle. The Freshie score mounted quickly, from 10 to 10. The Freshie guards and baskets were the pick of the 17 team, but even their efforts failed to pull out a gain over the stronger opponents, and the final whistle blew with the score 17-10 in favor of the Seniors.

A FAST MATCH

The play was most creditable to both years, being without doubt the fastest and most equal match of the basketball season.

The postponed Juniors vs. Sophs game will be played off shortly.

The line up was as follows:

Seniors.	Position.	Freshies.
G. Boller	Baskets	R. Goodwin
M. Macoun	Baskets	E. Eleanor Hay
L. Demuth	Centre	M. Kier
K. Smith	Wings	Helen Scott

ARGONAUTS DEFEAT HAMILTON O. R. F. U. TEAM YESTERDAY

O'Connor Bright Particular Star in Dominion Semi-Finals

Only a small crowd turned out to see the semi-final in the Dominion championship. A heavy rain the night before the game had softened the turf considerably, but not enough to greatly hamper the players.

The Argonauts, in view of their lesson of two years ago, placed their strongest team in the field. Allen, formerly of Varsity, replaced Motley on the Toronto line, while Ross Craig, formerly of the Tigers, played with Hamilton.

The teams line up as follows:

Rowing Club.	Position.	Argos.
Flekey	Flying wing	Murphy
McNeilly	Centre half	Bickie
McKelvey	Right half	Smith
Harper	Quarter	Mills
Gerrard	Scrim.	Patterson
McCarthy	Scrim.	Davidson
O. Heir	Scrim.	Simpson
Craig	Inside wings	McFarlane
Wren	Inside wings	Burkart
Caffrey	Middle wings	Allen
Fisher	Outside wings	Knight
Gatenby	Outside wings	Murray

Referee, "Sinc" McEvenue.

Hamilton kicked off and held Argos on their quarter line. Argos bucked for yards, but lost the ball for interference, and on the first down McNeilly opened the scoring by kicking to the Argos' dead line. Hamilton held the Argos on the defensive by end runs interspersed with kicks and fast following up.

O'Connor relieved the situation for the Argos by going through the centre for thirty yards. He immediately followed this up by a kick to the dead line, which left the score tie at quarter time.

The Rowing Club were playing the game of their lives and throughout the second period had the edge on the Argos. Smith provided the thrill in this quarter by a magnificent run of forty yards in running back one of McNeilly's punts. McNeilly was responsible for another punt when he kicked to Murphy for a touch in goal. Shortly afterwards Hamilton added another point to their score, when O'Connor was held for a rouse. This ended the scoring in the first half and the teams left the field with the Rowing Club leading by three points to one.

On the resumption of play Argos seemed blessed with a new lease of life, and started to take the offensive for the first time. Kicking to Stowe, who was held for a rouse. Shortly after Smith broke away for a run of thirty yards, which brought O'Connor within range of the goal posts and he proceeded to add another field goal to his already formidable list. This brought the score around to 5 to 3 in favor of the Argos.

From the kick off the ball travelled behind the Argos' line, where Smith got possession and ran it out, passing to Murphy, who romped the whole length of the field for a try which O'Connor converted.

O'Connor tried another drop kick, which failed, and then boosted the Argos' score for a rouse. Not content with his day's work thus far, O'Connor added four more points to the score by a kick to the dead-line and another field goal from thirty-five yards out. This ended the scoring for the Argos, and the game was called shortly after with the score standing:

Argos, 16; Hamilton, 4.

EIGHTY HOCKEY CANDIDATES OUT

Splendid Turnout at First Hockey Practice of Season at Harvard

The first practice of the season for both the University and Freshmen hockey squads at Harvard were held on Monday.

Eighty candidates for the university team, as compared with 44 at the same time last year, reported to Coach Winsor and Captain Clapham at the Hemenway Gymnasium. A short drill in goal shooting on the concrete floors of the handball courts was followed by a two-mile jog across country.

The sixty Freshmen who reported behind Standish Hall for the first workout of the 1918 squad were dismissed after a two-mile run had been taken. No Freshman practice will be held today.

"BREAK OF GAME" AIDS FOOTBALL

"Lucky" Play of the Sport Usually Made Possible by Wide Awake Player

"The breaks of the game!" How often we hear that nowadays. In football, in baseball, in tennis, in golf, in boxing—indeed, in all contests which are waged with skill and pluck, "breaks" are prominent factors. They may be real, they may be psychological, but nevertheless they can be detected by the man who follows the battle closely and knows that the unexpected is bound to come.

What are the "breaks"? Well, since they are the unexpected turns in a contest between individuals or teams, they have been referred to as luck. This usually is incorrect. Luck is bound to play a part, more or less important, in all contests. But it comes in "breaks" which are made by alertness on the part of the individual or team which gets them.

"LUCK," SAY THE LOSERS.

For an example, take two teams which are engaged in a football battle. The fourth period is under way, neither eleven has scored. A punt is essayed, a forward break through blocks the kick, picks up the ball, and runs fifty yards for a touchdown. "Luck," say the losers. From their point of view it was. The victors prefer to call it a "break of the game," and they are more nearly correct.

In nine cases out of ten the forward who broke through to block that kick was just a trifle more alert, mentally and physically than the opponents. He knew something desperate had to be done. He put his all into the effort. He caught the enemy off guard. In fact, he made that "break." It would not have come to him had he not been keyed up to take advantage of it.

SAMMY WHITE AND FUMBLES

Several years ago Princeton had "Sammy" White, who beat Harvard and Yale by picking up fumbles and running almost the entire length of the field for a touchdown. "Luck," said the majority of the spectators. Even some Tiger supporters agreed that the element of chance figured largely in the recovery of fumbles.

But they did not stop to consider that fumbles occur in almost every game. They did not figure that ordinarily when a loose ball is bounding around on the field, two, three, or a half dozen warriors make a dive for it and frequently it slips from one to the other until a fellow gets a deathlike grip on the ball. That is what might have happened when Sammy White went after fumbles. But that is not what happened.

Sammy had figured out that the chances of realizing a touchdown from a fumble were 100 per cent. greater if a player learned to pick a ball up while running at top speed. Accordingly that is what he set out to learn to do. He worked incessantly, on a dry field and on a wet, slippery turf. He even soaked the pigskin so it would be hard to grasp. He finally became so proficient at it that he would sprint down the gridiron, stoop and pick up the ball while in motion and continue without the loss of a step.

That was why Sammy White picked up fumbles in the Harvard and Yale games. That is why he got the "breaks." Luck had to bring about the fumbles. But when they came it was virtually certain that the Tiger end would be able to pick them up and get away for a touchdown. And now you will understand why the "breaks of the game" are not always pure luck. A man who played mechanically and did not use his brains wouldn't get a "break" in a thousand years.

COLLEGE PAPERS EXCHANGE STAFFS FOR SINGLE ISSUE

California Paper to be Published by Stanford Editorial Board and Vice Versa

M. A. Hagen, '15, of the Chaparral, and Fred Faust, '15, editor of the Pelican, a publication of the students of the University of California, agreed Saturday to an exchange of staffs for a single issue of the two papers.

The plan, as it stands, provides for the publication of a "Chaparral Edition of the Pelican" on the Stanford campus and a "Pelican Edition of the Chaparral" at the University of California. The former will, in size and general contents, closely resemble a regular edition of the "Chaparral," the main difference being that the material will be handled by the staff of the California paper. The "Pelican Edition of the Chaparral" will be published in the same way by the Stanford men.

Saturday's decision was the result of a previous meeting which included Business Managers H. R. Harvey, '16, of the Chaparral, and Ben Knapp, '15, of the Pelican. Many ideas regarding staff preparation, appointment of the

Wilson Elected Captain of Yale

Clever Quarterback Unanimous Choice of the Eli Players at Banquet

A. D. Wilson '16, quarterback on the Yale University football team, was unanimously elected captain of the 1915 Yale eleven at a banquet given to the football men recently.

Wilson prepared at the Princeton Preparatory School, Princeton, and played on his freshman team. For the last two years he has played a brilliant offensive game on the Yale eleven. He is 21 years old, 6 feet tall, and weighs 175 pounds.

WHO WILL CAPTAIN VARSITY'S TEAM FOR NEXT SEASON

Football Still Holds Sway in Toronto

Who will be the Varsity captain for next season is the question of the hour at the University of Toronto. It has been a tradition that no man can hold the job of captain for two seasons. This tradition was broken when Jack Maynard led the collegians on two occasions, with a year in between that "Pete" Campbell held down the position. On account of the great showing of the Varsity team this season several of the most ardent supporters are clamoring to have Charlie Gage elected to the job again.

Next year is Gage's final one at Varsity. If Monk Carr would be back next season he would undoubtedly be the choice, but this is his last year, and he is eliminated. Lindsay is well liked by his team mates, but the consensus of opinion is that Laddie Cassels will be elected. The popular opinion is that Laddie Cassels will be elected. The popular opinion is that Laddie Cassels will be elected. The popular opinion is that Laddie Cassels will be elected.

The condition of the Varsity team is one which is causing concern among its followers owing to three of the regulars being on the crippled list. "Laddie" Cassels broke a bone in his hand in the last McGill match, and has been unable to take part in any of the scrimmages in the workouts, while Dick Sheehy is still suffering from a sprained wrist. Len Lindsay, the halfback, tore a ligament in his foot in the McGill match, and can only put his foot down in a certain position, although he stated that he would forget all about it in the game on Saturday. Following these injuries, Leeming Carr, who figured on the back division this season, has announced his retirement from the game and followed it up by not coming out to practice since the McGill game.

Sinc McEvenue

Who is much in demand at the present time as an official, "Sinc" work in the Varsity-McGill game created so favourable an impression that he was secured to take charge of yesterday's game and also officiated at the St. Michael's-Tigers clash on Tuesday.

staff, and general management of the papers were exchanged and discussed. Among the hoped-for results from the staff exchange is a closer union of the sympathies of the two universities. Upon the success of this venture will probably depend the establishment of a custom of yearly exchange of staffs.

December 7 has been selected as the date for the issue of the exchange editions of both papers together. The sale of both papers together will afford the two student bodies an opportunity of interesting comparisons.

Robert Zupke, who developed the champion Illinois eleven of the Western Conference, never played the gridiron game. He first attracted attention as a high school coach at Muskegon and later went to Oak Park, Chicago, where his team proved victorious against many of the best "prep" teams of the middle west. Zupke played basketball and specialized in open foot ball.

OTTAWA MAY YET ENTER TEAM IN INTERCOLLEGIATE

Ottawa Paper Thinks Intercollegiate Hockey Would Now Pay

Ottawa Citizen:—There is material at Ottawa College for a strong team, and it is to be hoped the Intercollegiate Union sees its way clear to admit Father Stanton's proteges. Afternoon games could be played here, as at Montreal and Toronto. "Laurie" Roberts, a well-known Ottawa boy, is president of the Intercollegiate League, and is in favour of admitting the Garpet and Grey. Intercollegiate hockey did not come in for much patronage when Ottawa College were in the league before, as they were grouped with Laval only, but with McGill, University of Toronto and Queen's competing against them, the Sandy Hill students would undoubtedly make a success of the game in Ottawa.

FIFTEEN HARVARD PLAYERS GRADUATE BEFORE NEXT FALL

Three Regular Backfield Men Will Graduate in June

Their football game and its attendant celebration over, the Harvard football players who came through so splendidly at New Haven are now back in Cambridge and hustling to get back into the stride in their college course.

As the season ends and another fall is looked forward to, it is realized just what a veteran team it was that put over those 26 points down on Yale field for Harvard. There were no less than 25 players engaged in the match, the only one of the season for which the football association awards a varsity "11," and of these 25 players no less than 15 will go out of college when the class of 1915 is graduated next June. This leaves ten of the players for another season, most of them being substitutes, and nine returning as seniors at the beginning of the next campaign. Only one man of the 25 played as a freshman a year ago.

Harvard will lose, besides Brickley, three of the four regular members of the backfield and four of the seven varsity rushers. With Brickley as classmate are Logan, Bradlee, Harwick, Trumbull and Jeff Colledge, the line-men, are seniors. Other players who have played their last game of football for Harvard are the substitutes, Weatherhead and Smith, ends, and Withington, Underwood and Atkinson, three of the heavy men in the middle of the line.

Thus will be seen that only three of the first string Varsity players will be on hand to begin work under the Haughton system another fall. These are Eddie Mahan, the halfback; Parsons, the left tackle, and Wallace, the right tackle. Mahan, who is the only man who has played with the Varsity for more than one season, is sure to be elected captain of the eleven for next fall.

RIGHT AND WRONG VIEWS OF COLLEGE SPORTSMANSHIP

National Collegiate Association Discuss Ethics and Ideals of Athletic Contests

Athletic sport, if honorably and wisely conducted, can hold its own in any institution of learning, but to make it a position of dignity it must be saved from many of its friends, and maintained on so high a level that no reasonable man can question its value. Rightly administered it strengthens the weak, improves the brain, teaches boys and young men to respect their bodies and to know the relation of a clean, vigorous body to an active mind and an honorable life. Rightly conducted it is a school of manly skill, courage, and endurance, and even of courtesy; wrongly conducted, it is a school of bad manners, vulgarity, tricky evasion, brutality—the ideals not of a sportsman, but of a sporting man.

We are constantly told that in England men play for the sake of playing, whereas in America men play for the sake of winning. The more serious the question of winning, the more serious the need of winning honorably. Sport in America is not mere fun; it is a test of character, and nothing that makes the player less a gentleman belongs to it. The football player who wantonly injures his rivals, the baseball player who persists in shouting to rattle his opponents, the schoolboy or student who takes money for summer baseball and conceals the fact, should be put off of the team. Nor should any school or any college have secrets as to the legitimacy of its athletic representatives.

OBJECT OF ASSOCIATION.

To maintain high ideals in athletic sport is the chief purpose of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. This association brings together representatives of more than one hundred universities and colleges in three meetings held on one day every year. Sometimes a group of colleges sends a joint representative; often a college sends a man of its own, or two or three men, of whom only one represents it officially. A number of schools and academies have associate membership. Committees working throughout the year prepare business for the meetings, when the delegates listen to addresses from men who know much about athletic sports, and reports from committees on the various athletic sports cultivated at college. The evening meeting is devoted to the discussion of vitally important questions in college athletics.

Though strictly the association has no power over the colleges it represents, it has unlimited opportunity of influence. Its discussions of athletics are the most important in America; and its opinions find expression in "Rules Committees" and in standards

"Winged Wheelers" Have Practically Cinched Polo Championship

Last night at the Y.M.C.A. tank both of McGill's water polo teams went down to defeat before the strong M.A.A.A. teams.

The Intermediates took the tank first, and immediately started proceedings by registering a goal in the first few minutes of play. Throughout the first half the Intermediates played a strong game, and although out-scored by three to one they had their fair share of the play. After the tea was taken to the tank again, M.A.A.A. began to take advantage of their superior condition, and despite the strenuous work of O'Brien and the defence as a whole, they ran in five more goals, making the final score 8-1 in favor of M.A.A.A. Mackay in goal for McGill played a remarkably good game and in no way can be held responsible for the large number of goals scored on him during the game. Time and again he made very clever saves.

The Intermediates seemed to be somewhat lacking in condition, and were unable to stand the fast pace out for them by the fast M.A.A.A. sextette.

The intermediate teams lined up as follows:

McGill.	Position.	M.A.A.A.
Mackay	Goal	Hughes
O'Brien	Defence	Earle
Rutherford	Defence	Venning
Wilson	Centre	Savage
Padon	Forwards	Logan
Sutherland	Forwards	Silver

After the intermediate game had been decided, the two opposing senior teams entered the bath and once more the M.A.A.A. downed the Red and White. The match on the tank was the best and most keenly contested games ever seen in a Montreal tank.

McGill needed but this game to tie them with the M.A.A.A. for the Canadian championship, but, unfortunately, the match on the tank was lost and won. Logan and McGill took every advantage of the fact that Roseborough was defending the deep goal and rained shots upon him thick and fast. Roseborough played a steady cool-headed game, and saved time and time again, but the M.A.A.A. forwards kept right on the job and altogether four goals were netted before it came time to change ends again.

When the teams changed ends for the second half, M.A.A.A. were defending the shallow end of the tank, and it was right here that the game was lost and won. Logan and McGill took every advantage of the fact that Roseborough was defending the deep goal and rained shots upon him thick and fast. Roseborough played a steady cool-headed game, and saved time and time again, but the M.A.A.A. forwards kept right on the job and altogether four goals were netted before it came time to change ends again.

McGill set out to win back the four goals she had lost. Lester and Penzancey on the forward line, and Patterson on the defence, all worked like Trojans to overcome the lead that the M.A.A.A. had amassed, and looked like doing it for some time. Edgerton, in goal for M.A.A.A., proved equal to the occasion though, and by a demonstration of goal tending which has never been surpassed in Montreal, succeeded in holding McGill to one lone score.

The honors of the evening go to the two goalkeepers, while Logan and McGill, for the M.A.A.A., and Lester and Penzancey, of McGill, proved to be the backbone of the attack.

The senior teams lined up as follows:

McGill.	Position.	M.A.A.A.
Roseborough	Goal	Edgerton
Patterson	Defence	Cairns
Smith	Defence	Logan
McGill	Centre	Ritchie
Lester	Forwards	McGill
Penzancey	Forwards	Colville

There was a very good attendance at the game, but the majority of the people there were M.A.A.A. supporters, only a few McGill fans being present. There is no doubt a team needs far more encouragement than can be given by a couple of supporters if it is going to bring championships to its college.

It is officially announced that there will be no athletics of any kind at Cambridge University this year. The principal reason for the cancellation, even of the minor sporting events, is that the men have no time to train or practice, as five afternoons a week being occupied by work in the officers' training corps.

The official notice applies to all freshmen's sports and to the inter-collegiate games.

Harvard's championship football team played to a total gate receipts this season of more than $360,000, according to unofficial figures made public on Monday. The actual amount will not be available for several weeks. The big crowd of 70,000 in the Yale bowl helped materially in making the season a record breaker. On the other hand, there was a decrease in the attendance at the two final games at the stadium, those with Princeton and Brown, compared with the figures of two years ago. The three principal games on the Crimson schedule, Michigan, Princeton and Yale, drew 120,000 persons.

Lieut. E. A. J. Collins, of the Imperial forces, who was recently killed in France, will always hold a place in the history of cricket, as he made the highest individual score on record. He did this as a student at Clifton College, scoring "228 not out" in an innings lasting six hours and fifty minutes.

The association encourages "Faculty control of athletics," believing that the man in charge of physical education should be a member of the Faculty and as good a man as any in it; that he should have a thorough acquaintance with athletic sport and a strong sympathy with youth, kind, and able to teach, the difference between cleverness and trickery, between manliness and brutality, between the amateur spirit and the professional, between the sportsman and the sporting man.

Starrett, of Halifax, in which the latter stated that he had six vacancies and desired to have them filled with U. N. B. students. The plan of the students, however, is to have all if possible go together, and they favor a plan of a company of students from universities in the regiment.

There has been more American football dope upset this year than ever before in the history of football. Teams that were expected to set the world on fire with their brilliant playing have failed, while other teams that were comparatively unknown in football have made grand records. This upsetting of so much dope was probably caused by the open field play that has been adopted by so many teams. By comparative scores Kansas had a big advantage over Missouri in their annual game, but the dope was completely upset, Missouri winning, 10 to 7. Another eleven that has made some of the big teams looks small is Washington and Jefferson.

OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS.

The working in connection with the organizing of the officers' training corps at Queen's is now under way and the authorities hope to form four companies, having altogether two hundred men. The application forms were sent to-day to the students in the Arts and Medical Faculties.

THE STRAND.

"The Dead Man Who Killed."

A peculiar title is that which heads the programme at The Strand for Thursday and Friday of this week. The photoplay is called "The Dead Man Who Killed" and is certainly properly named as anyone seeing it will agree. It is in four parts featuring Paul Grovesmith, England's greatest dramatic motion picture star. Along with this comes the little favorite, Miss Mary Fuller, in a two-reel drama, "In the Heart of the Night Winds," to complete the programme.

"The Dead Man Who Killed" concerns an officer and a plain soldier in the Russian army. They both love the same girl, and she plainly favors the soldier lad. On this account, owing to his superior position, the officer subjects the other to all kinds of ill-treatment which has to be swallowed and nothing said. Later the officer is commanded by one of his superiors to acquire a post that will take a journey of some six days and nights to reach and he chooses the soldier lad as an orderly to keep him company. But the soldier is well aware that he intends to kill him. However as time goes on, on their third day out, far in the desert an opportunity presents itself to the soldier and he stealthily creeps up and steals the officer's gun and food supplies and makes away, leaving the officer to die or get along the best way he can. When the officer awakes and finds the way the land lays he pursues, and after weathering a terrible sand storm he finally overtakes the soldier and they come together in a terrible struggle of life and death in which finally the officer is triumphant. In the struggle, however, the soldier handcuffs him, and it is after all is over that he realizes with terror that he is chained to a dead man and away far from civilization in the desert. It's a great picture, and if you want something in the way of dramatic finish be sure and see this photoplay.
